

I struggle in my faith because I see evolution as a fact which seems to contradict the Genesis creation account. How can I remain faithful to God and trust His word?

One will have a more sure faith (2 Pe 1:19) when he holds a young earth creation view.

Jason Lisle wrote, "...[E]vidence is always interpreted in light of that person's worldview. The evidence doesn't "speak for itself"; it's the interpretation that is significant, and the interpretation is bound to be compatible with the worldview that produced it."¹

Science changes but the Bible does not. Adrian Rogers said, "Men study science as god not the God of science."

Young earth theory teaches that the earth and universe is about 6,000 years old. God said that he completed all of creation in six, 24-hour days. A six-day creation accounts for the genealogies given in Genesis that span only thousands of years.² The fossil record was formed rapidly and catastrophically during Noah's flood.
